PRESS OF

PREFACE.

Mr. Samuel Waters Allerton, of Chicago, Illinois, in issuing this revised edition of the "Allerton Family," does not intend to detract from the great credit to be given Mr. Walter S. Allerton for his publication of 1888, but simply to add facts which have been found since that time, and to correct errors which almost invariably occur in Genealogies through incorrect family records thought to be true when published, but afterward found otherwise.

In the preface to the edition of 1888 Mr. Walter S. Allerton says, in part:

Pride of ancestry is common to all ages and all peoples, and it is an entirely proper and justifiable sentiment. We know that man, like other animals, possesses the power to transmit to his offspring the mental and physical characteristics that have been most prominent in himself. Students of social science tell us that the children of criminals are apt to prove criminals themselves, and other things being equal, the man who can trace his descent through a dozen generations of honest men is for that very reason more likely to prove himself an honest man.

The history of the Allerton family is a strong proof of the enduring quality of family traits and characteristics, both physical and mental, for we find in members of two branches, that have been entirely separated for two centuries, the same physical appearance and the same mental peculiarities. We find in a majority of the family to-day many resemblances in personal appearance to their common ancestor, and we find still more prominent the same peculiarities of mind and disposition. We are proud to recognize the same spirit of honesty and independence that led him to cast in his lot with the adventurers of New Plymouth, and the same broadness of mind and toleration of the opinions of others that brought him into conflict with the narrow spirit of puritanism. We claim a share of his courage and his enterprise, and we admit that we have also inherited somewhat of his quick temper and of his wandering disposition and unsettled spirit. The Allertons have ever been wanderers; they can point to no one place as the home of their family, the same restless spirit that led their ancestors up and down upon the earth has appeared to be always with them. It is only in a few rare cases that we find the son continuing to dwell where his father dwelt before him; and this fact, while affording another proof of the possession of common traits of character, has rendered it difficult to collect a complete genealogical record of the family.

The author began the work of collecting material for a family history some ten years since, and pursued it in such time as could be spared from the practice of his profession, but he soon found that another had been for a long time at work in the same field. The late Mead Allerton of Newark, Wayne County, New York, after working for many years at this task, left at his death a large and valuable manuscript, which was placed in the author's hands by his widow, and from which many details for this volume were obtained, especially in regard to the fourth, fifth and sixth generations of the Rhode Island and New York branches. Mead Allerton had not been able, however, to collect much information about the New Jersey branch, and to obtain this has been the most difficult part of the work.

The name of Allerton is one that is comparatively common in some parts of England, and there are several families now in the United States who are in no way related to us, being emigrants from England themselves or descendants of such,—a list of these Allertons will be found at the end of the genealogical record. The beauty of the name has also caused it to be frequently used by novelists and other writers, and it has also been occasionally assumed by persons not belonging to the family, some of whom have not been of a character calculated to reflect credit on any family.

Where nearly every one to whom the author has applied for information has gladly responded, it may seem unfair to mention any in particular, but while the author takes this opportunity to thank all who have in any manner assisted him, he feels that the members of the family generally ought to know the names of those who have rendered particular service. Besides Mead Allerton to whom the greatest credit is due for many years of patient and painstaking research, the author has received valuable assistance from the following persons:

Mrs. Jane G. Allerton, of Salem, Ohio.

James M. Allerton, of Port Jervis, New York.

Orville H. Allerton, of Newark, New York.

Mrs. Clara E. Delap, of Osnaburgh, Ohio,
Charles B. Allerton, of Keelersville, Michigan.

Ezekiel Allerton, of Roanoke, Indiana.

Lemira C. Allerton, of Youngstown, Ohio.

Jasper Tilden, of Jefferson, Wisconsin.

Mrs. James Kynett, of Alliance, Ohio.

H. D. Hutson, of Deerfield, Ohio.

WALTER S. ALLERTON.

New York, December, 1888.

Up to the present time some facts concerning the early generations have not been found in town, church or probate records, and for that reason have been questioned, but a careful study of all the facts attest the statement that, in the main, they are undoubtedly true. Reference is made in this connection to the Appendix added to this edition.

Mr. Mead Allerton did not keep a record of the authority from which he derived his information but, when of sufficient character to satisfy him, the simple statement of facts was made. In these early generations Mr. Walter S. Allerton merely completed his work. In the later generations, with few exceptions, this edition is practically a reprint of that of 1888, so ably compiled by the author.

The arrangement of families has been materially changed and in order that reference may be quickly made the following suggestions are offered, viz.:

The figures directly preceding and following each name indicate the number of the child in the family and the generation, the marginal number is the general number.

With the head of each family is shown his marginal number, below you find his children, turn back where his marginal number shows him as a child and you find his parents. Note the marginal number against any one of his children, turn forward to where that number appears as the head of a family, and there you will find that child's children.

This edition of the Allerton Family is published with the knowledge and consent of Mr. Walter S. Allerton, who has also assisted in its preparation. The major portion is a reprint of the first edition. It is hoped that each family will enter the later records of their individual family on the blank pages at the end of the volume.

THE ALLERTON FAMILY.

In reviewing the history of the Allerton Family one very marked feature which arrests our attention is the slow growth, in numbers, prior to about the year 1750.

Isaac<sup>1</sup>, of the Mayflower, left but one son who remained in New England, viz.: Isaac<sup>2</sup>, and he in turn left Isaac<sup>3</sup>, born in New Haven, Conn., and Willoughby<sup>3</sup>, born in Virginia.

The Virginia line is not carried forward, in detail, although proper reference is made to it, for the reason that, as early as 1760, the male line became extinct. This line is not important, therefore, to later generations of Allertons.

Isaac<sup>3</sup> born in New Haven in 1655 thus becomes the progenitor of all Allertons of the later generations.

Since 1750 the family has largely increased in numbers, and at the present time there are several hundred persons living who are Allertons by birth and lineal descendants of Isaac of the Mayflower.

His descendants may be said to embrace three branches; the Rhode Island branch, being the descendants of John<sup>5</sup>; the New York branch, being the descendants of Isaac<sup>5</sup>, and the New Jersey branch, being the descendants of Zachariah<sup>5</sup>.

The history of the Rhode Island branch is very brief; they resided in Rhode Island and in Windham County, Connecticut, and were generally farmers, but many of the sons of this family died young and unmarried. The branch is now practically extinct, there being only one male descendant of John<sup>5</sup> now known to be living.

The New York branch, after residing in Connecticut about fifty years, removed to Dutchess county, in New York, and to the county of Greene, on the west bank of the Hudson, where many of them reside to this day, and from there they gradually followed the general tendency of settlement to the west, and while they are scattered over the entire country, by far the greater number reside in the States of New York, Ohio, Michigan and Illinois; while in New England, the original home of the Pilgrims, there are now less than a dozen members.

This branch, which is entitled to the honor of being the older and principal branch of the family, has always been the most successful, and has contained the larger number of men who have attained to positions of eminence in professional or business life.

The New Jersey branch has always shown a roving and unsettled disposition, their history has been the most varied and the most difficult to trace. It is certain that Jesse 4 had at least two other sons besides Zachariah<sup>5</sup>, but no trace of any of their descendants have ever been found. There is a tradition, which seems to be entitled to acceptance, that two sons of Jesse, after removing to New Jersey with Zachariah, continued still further into the wilderness, and settling in the Wyoming valley, were killed with all their families at the time of the celebrated massacre. There is no mention of the name in any of the accounts of the massacre, but this is not conclusive proof that they were not there at the time, and in most accounts we find the names of several families of Athertons among the victims, and this we know to have been the most common of the many mistaken forms which the family name has often taken. It has been very difficult to obtain facts as to names, dates, etc., of the members of the New Jersey branch of the fifth, sixth and seventh generations, and the rule, which has been invariably adhered to, of rejecting every item about which there seemed to be even the suspicion of doubt, has rendered it impossible to give many details of their lives. But the chain of descent has been traced in every case with absolute certainty, so that every living member of the family can readily follow his own line back to the common ancestor, and can ascertain the exact degree of relationship existing between himself and any other Allerton. The sons and grandsons of Zachariah gradually drifted from New Jersey westward through Pennsylvania to north-eastern Ohio, where the greater number of his descendants now reside, although many of them are found in Michigan, Indiana and other Western States.

The great majority of the family are to-day, as they have always been, farmers. They have never showed a tendency to city life, and very few are at present dwelling in any of our large cities. Outside of farming the occupation most favored has been that of machinist.

Each of the learned professions has had several representatives. The elergymen have been Reuben<sup>7</sup>, Isaac<sup>7</sup> and Job D.<sup>9</sup>, of whom only the latter is now living. The physicians were Reuben<sup>6</sup>, Cornelius<sup>7</sup>, Goodwin<sup>7</sup> and Cornelius<sup>8</sup>, all able and successful practitioners.

The three lawyers are Russell<sup>7</sup>, of Scituate, Rhode Island, who died in 1815, and James M.<sup>8</sup>, of Port Jervis, New York, and Walter S.<sup>9</sup>, of New York City, both of whom are now living.

Members of the family have fought in all the wars that have occurred since the landing of the Pilgrims, including the old Indian wars, the Revolution, the War of 1812, the Mexican war and the Rebellion—thus showing their willingness to go forth to battle for the defense and preservation of that liberty which their great ancestor had done so much to establish. History also shows that many Allertons served the Colonies and Nation in civil capacities.

The Allerton family has as yet given no great names to history, they have never sought office or the rewards of political strife, the occupations to which they have generally devoted themselves have never been those that lead to fame or to political preferment, they have been farmers, merchants or mechanics, and have been content to be good citizens and honest men. The whole history of the family is remarkably free from moral blemishes.

Physically, they have always been a hardy and vigorous race, and in general long lived, many living to be ninety or more, and one, the late Samuel W. Allerton, of Newark, New York, being ninety-nine years and eight months old at his death. In appearance the majority are large framed, rather over than under middle height, fair complexioned with dark hair and eyes, many have brown or sandy hair and some blue or gray eyes, but few, if any, have been known who were of a distinctly blonde type. In youth they are generally slender and quick of action, and many have been noted for strength and dexterity, but they are apt to become quite fleshy in old age. The most prominent physical characteristic of the family is the shape of the forehead, eyes and nose, this can easily be seen by taking a number of portraits of members of all branches, and placing cards over them in such a manner as to show only the upper half of the face, when a remarkable similarity will be noticed by any one.

They are a quick tempered race and apt to act upon impulse, very decided in both likes and dislikes, and usually rather uncommunicative and reserved, not very ready to make new friends but firm in their attachment to old ones.

THE ALLERTON FAMILY.

ISAAC ALLERTON.

The exact time or place of Isaac Allerton's birth is not at present known to his descendants in the United States. He probably belonged to an old and honorable family of mixed Saxon and Danish descent, that had been for many centuries located in the south-eastern part of England, many representatives of which are still to be found in Suffolk and the adjacent counties. He was born between the years 1583 and 1585, and resided at London for some time prior to removing to Holland, in 1609. It is said, however, that he was about twenty-six years old when he went to Holland and about thirty-seven when he came to Plymouth. The records of St. Dionis Backchurch, London, give the marriage of Edward Allerton, of that parish, to Rose Davis, of St. Peter's, Cornhill, 14 February, 1579-80. Edward died in 1590. Rose survived him six years and died in 1596. Possibly they were the parents of Isaac Allerton and his sister Sarah. He is generally admitted to have been the wealthiest of all the Pilgrims, and is one of the few among them to whom Bradford and other contemporaneous writers always give the prefix "Mr.", which in those days was used as an index of superior family or respectability. He was also one of the three upon whom the privilege of citizenship was conferred by the city of Leyden, his associates in this honor, which was given February 5, 1614, being William Bradford, afterwards Governor of the Plymouth colony, and Degory Priest, his brother-in-law. He was first married, as we learn from the records in the Staathuis or City Hall of Leyden, on November 4, 1611, to Mary Norris, of Newbury, in England. The witnesses to this marriage were Edward Southworth, Richard Masterson and Randolph Tickens; for the bride, Anna Fuller and Dillon Carpenter.

No one in the whole Leyden colony was more efficient and eminently useful in all the preparations for their departure for America. At the time of the sailing of the Pilgrims he had four children, all born in Holland, three of whom, Bartholomew, Remember and Mary, came over with their parents in the Mayflower, while the youngest, Sarah, remained behind and came over later with her aunt, Sarah Priest, sister of Isaac Allerton, who was married first in London to John Vincent. She married second in Leyden, at the same time of her brother's marriage, Degory Priest, (Hatter from London). He died in Plymouth, Mass., 1 January, 1620–1. His widow, who had remained behind, married third at Leyden, Godbert Godbertson, who came to Plymouth with his wife, in the Ann, 1623, and both died in 1633.

As was natural at that season of the year, the voyage on the Mayflower was a long and stormy one, and disease and death were already at work among the over-crowded passengers of the little vessel, when on November 9, at break of day the sandy hills of Cape Cod became visible upon the western horizon. Their original design had been to make their settlement near the mouth of the Hudson, and accordingly they put about at once to the south, but soon found themselves entangled in the shoals of that dangerous coast, and being all of them, especially the women and children, heartily sick of confinement within the narrow limits of the little vessel, the desire to be once more on land became too strong to be resisted. The captain also, having been bribed by the Dutch West India Company not to carry them to the Hudson, declared that further progress to the south was impossible and putting about once more to the north, they doubled the northern extremity of the Cape next day, and came to anchor in Cape Cod harbor to ride out a storm.

This land, upon which they had now decided to settle, being in the forty-second degree of latitude was without the territory of the Virginia company, and therefore the charter they held became useless; and some symptoms of faction and of an inclination to throw off all authority appearing among the servants who had been hired in England. It was thought best by the leaders of the Colony that they should enter into an assocation for self government and bind themselves to be governed by the will of the majority; and accordingly, on the 11th day of November, 1620 (old style) there was drawn, on the lid of a chest on board of the Mayflower, at Cape-Codd, and signed by forty-one of the principal men of the first band of Pilgrims, a platform of government known as the Compact, and which gave to these people the claim of being the first "Signers" of the now United States of America. The following is the full text of the Compact:

IN YE NAME OF GOD. AMEN.

We whose names are underwritten, the loyal subjects of our dread Sovereigne Lord, King James, by ye grace of God, of Great Britaine, France and Ireland, King, defender of ye faith, etc., having undertaken for ye glory of God and advancement of ye Christian faith, and honour of our King and countrie, a voyage to plant ye first Colonie in ye northerne parts of Virginia, doe by these presents folemnly, and mutually, in ye presence of God, and of one another, covenant and combine ourselves togeather into a civil body politik for our better ordering and prefervation and furtherance of ye end aforefaid, and by vertue hearof to enacte, conftitute and frame fuch just and equal lawes, ordinances, acts, constitutions and offices from time to time, as shall be thought most meete and convenient for ye generall good of ve Colonie, unto which we promife all due fubmiffion and obedience. In witnes whereof we have hereunder fubscribed our names at Cape-Codd ye II of November in ye year of ye raigne of our Sovereigne Lord, King James of England, France and Ireland ve eighteenth, and of Scotland ye fiftie-fourth Ano Dom. 1620.

Isaac Allerton was the fifth signer of the Compact, the names which precede his being those of John Carver, William Bradford, Edward Winslow, and Elder William Brewster (afterward his father-in-law). His son-in-law, Degory Priest, was the twenty-ninth signer.

They remained at anchor in Cape Cod Harbor for five weeks, during which time the men made many excursions to explore the surrounding country, while the women were taken on shore to wash the clothing. Finally, having selected a place for their settlement, on Monday, December 22, 1620 (11th of December, 1620, O. S.), a date which by their act has been rendered one of the landmarks of history, they landed at Plymouth, and at once set about the erection of a storehouse for their goods, and dwellings for themselves. But even before their landing several of their number had died, and although the winter proved to be an unusually mild one, it was still far more severe than those to which they had been accustomed, and this together with their enfeebled condition after the confinement of the voyage and the want of proper food and shelter, caused such sickness among the colonists that at times there were no more than six or seven of them well enough to nurse the sick, and by the coming April forty-four, or nearly one-half, had died, and among them were Carver, the first governor, and his wife, and Mary the wife of Isaac Allerton, who died February 25th, 1621. While on the Mayflower in the harbor of Cape Cod, she had been delivered of a child, still-born, and the hardships and privations of that terrible winter proved too much for her strength thus enfeebled.

The first entry in the records of the Plymouth Colony is an incomplete list of "The Meersteads and Garden Plottes" assigned to those who came out on the Mayflower, at the first division of land. Each of these "Garden Plottes" contained one "aker." The list and diagram is as follows:

The South Side. PETER BROWN. JOHN GOODMAN. MR. BREWSTER. The Street. The North Side. Highway. JOHN BILLINGTON. MR. ISAAC ALLERTON. FRANCIS COOKE, EDWARD WINSLOW.

It will be noticed that the honorable prefix "Mr." is here given to Brewster and Allerton only.

The Street is now called Leyden street and leads from the harbor westward.

It is probable that Isaac Allerton built a house on his "Garden Plotte," but if he did he did not occupy it during the entire period of his residence in Plymouth, for in 1635, he lived at Rocky Nook, on Jones' River in Kingston, in a house which he afterwards sold "to my well beloved sonne-in-law Thomas Cushman," the location of which is still pointed out near the celebrated Elder's spring.

In March the colonists had grave apprehension of trouble with the Indians. On the night of the twenty-second an attack was expected and watch was kept, but there was no appearance of hostility, and as the old chronicle says, "The next day, Friday, Captain Standish "and Mr. Allerton went venturously to visit King Massasoit, and were "received by him after his manner. He gave them 3 or 4 groundnuts "and some tobacco."

As the result of this visit a treaty of peace was concluded, which held good for more than fifty years.

In April, Governor Carver died, and William Bradford was then chosen Governor, and Isaac Allerton Assistant Governor, a position which he held until 1624, and probably longer.

In September, 1621, a party of ten, including Isaac Allerton, went by water to explore what is now the harbor of Boston, and to visit the Indians who lived in that vicinity, and on this trip the first headland at Nantasket, at the entrance to the harbor was called Point Allerton, a name which it still retains, although it has sometimes been spelled Alderton; an adjoining hill in the town of Hull was also known for many years as Allerton Hill. For several years after the landing of the colonists Isaac Allerton was engaged, as were all the rest, in building houses and barns for shelter, in clearing and tilling the soil, and in managing with the other leading men, the affairs of the little settlement. We find him participating in another division of land in the spring of 1624, when seven acres, "on the south side of the Brook to the Baywards," were set off for him.

In 1626, he married Fear Brewster, the daughter of Elder William Brewster, who had come over in the ship Ann with her sister, Patience, in 1623. (See Appendix, note A.) She was a woman of pleasing appearance and of a pious disposition, as we are told, and she is interesting to us as being the mother of that Isaac Allerton, the second of the name, from whom the Allerton family is descended. She died December 12, 1634.

In the fall of 1626, Isaac Allerton was sent by the colonists to England, to obtain certain supplies for them of which they were in great need, and to arrange if possible a composition with the Adventurers, as those men who had advanced the funds for the colony were called. Bradford says that he was selected as the agent of the colonists in this matter as "being well qualified by education and experience, and having the confidence of the Merchants of London," and these advantages of education and experience in the affairs of the world, enabled him to manage the affairs of the colony with signal success for a time, but beyond doubt they were the natural causes of the disagreements which afterward took place.

In the spring of 1627 he returned with the draft of a composition, "drawn by the best counsel of law they could get to make it firm." By this contract, which was dated at London, November 15, 1626, the Adventurers sold to the Colony their entire interest in the settlement for £1800, "to be paid at the Royal Exchange, at London, every "Michaelmas, in nine annual installments of £200, each," and it was provided that they were to forfeit thirty shillings per week, for every week the debt was not paid after it was due. This composition was unanimously sanctioned, and Isaac Allerton was at once sent back to England with full authority to ratify and confirm it.

At the same time the entire trade of the colony for a period of six years, was bound to William Bradford, Edward Winslow, Isaac Allerton, and several others, in consideration of their assuming the entire indebtedness, amounting in all to about £2400, and in addition they were to pay the Colony £50 per annum in hoes and shoes.

Having satisfactorily arranged the composition with the Adventurers and paid them their first installment of £200, and having paid other debts, Isaac Allerton returned to Plymouth in the spring of 1628, bringing with him a supply of goods, and also a patent for a trading station on the Kennebec, but when they came to compare the patent with the region to which it applied, they found it "so strait and ill bounded," that he was again sent to England, for the third time, to obtain the enlargement and correction of this patent, and also a new patent for Plymouth, and to arrange for the removal of the remainder of the church at Leyden. He was compelled to return to Plymouth without accomplishing all he had been desired to do, but being immediately sent back again, in August, 1629, he had better success, and obtained the desired patent January 29, 1630. He went to England several times after this on business for the colonists or for himself, crossing the ocean in all seven times.

About this time, 1630, began his trouble with the colonists, or rather with Governor Bradford, the true cause of which it is difficult to ascertain, and with a full account of which I shall not weary the reader. Bradford's version can be found, written with all the energy and raneour of his narrow and prejudiced mind, in the pages of his famous journal, but it is a series of complaints rather than a statement of facts, and evidently fails to state the true grounds of the disagreement. We might offset the complainings of Bradford with the statements of those who were better able to know the true value of Isaac Allerton's services to the colony; thus James Sherley, one of the Adventurers and a steadfast friend of the colonists, writes, March 8, 1629, "He hath been a truly honest friend to you all, either there "or here. And if any do, as I know some of them are apt to speak ill "of him, believe them not." And again on March 19, 1629, he writes, in a letter signed also by Timothy Hatherly, a friend of the colonists at London, "But the Lord so blessed his labours (even beyond expec"tation in these evil days), as he obtained the love and favour of great "men in repute and place, he got granted all Mr. Winslow desired in "his letters to me and more also." Many similar statements might be quoted from letters and writings of other friends to the colony in England, while on the other hand Bradford complains bitterly that too much money had been expended in obtaining a charter, and that he had sometimes endeavored to further his own interests rather than those of the colony. But those who care to examine into the merits will inevitably come to the conclusion reached by a painstaking and impartial historian, that "As an agent Mr. Allerton appears to have "been indefatigable in his attempts to promote the interests of his "employers. He was a person of uncommon activity, address and "enterprise."

The true cause, however, of this difficulty with the colonists and with Bradford in particular, is undoubtedly to be found in the fact, that he was in mind, education and practice far more liberal than they, and that while his associations in England with the merchants of London, and the officers of the court and government tended to still further broaden and liberalize his views, their seclusion in the forests and among the dangers of the little settlement at Plymouth was most admirably calculated to make still narrower and more bigoted natures that were already inclined to the most puritanical of views.

We know that the church at Leyden took offence at the liberal tendencies of Isaac Allerton, that the colonists were greatly offended at his apparently innocent mistake in employing the notorious Morton of Merry Mount as his secretary, although in these days, Morton would almost pass for a saint, and when he became known as a firm friend of Roger Williams, and was found to have sheltered and protected many of the oppressed and persecuted Quakers, the cup of his iniquity was indeed full to the minds of the colonists, and we are not surprised to hear that about 1636, he left Massachusetts in consequence of the religious intolerance of the people, and went to New Amsterdam to live. Like most of his descendants, Isaac Allerton, though a just and fair minded man, was of a quick temper, apt to resent an affront, and impetuous in acting upon his impulses, and therefore, when once a difference had arisen between him and a majority of the Plymouth colonists, who were no doubt well represented by their narrow and dogmatic governor, there was little possibility of any reconciliation, even had there been more in common in their natures and their ways of life and thought.

Moreover, he had given great offence by embarking extensively in business which conflicted in many ways with the industries of the colony. He was admittedly the first merchant of New England, and the founder of the coasting trade and the fishing industry. We find early mention of vessels owned by him, and he was the first to welcome Winthrop and his Company to the shores of the New World. Winthrop says in his journal, under date of June 12, 1630, "About four "in the morning we were near our port, we shot off two pieces of "ordinance and sent our skiff to Mr. Pierce (which lay in the harbor "and had been there——days before); about an hour after Mr. "Allerton came on board us in a shallon as he was sailing to Pemaquid." In 1632 he attempted to set up a rival trading station on the Kennebec, and also to establish one on the Penobscot, but both these enterprises were unsuccessful, the latter station being broken up by the French in 1634. In 1633, Winthrop records that he fished with light boats at Marble Harbor, and he is justly regarded as the founder of Marblehead, for he made that place the headquarters of his fishing fleet, built a large warehouse, and resided there a great part of the time with his son-in-law Moses Maverick, until his liberal views again brought him into trouble with the General Court, as they had previously done with his old associates at Plymouth, and he was given "leave to depart from Marblehead."

That he was liberal in other matters as well as in religion, we know from the following extract from the records, under date of December 2, 1633: "Whereas, Mr. Will. Bradford was appointed in "the behalf of the Court to enter upon the estate of Godbert Godbert-

"son and Zarah his wife, and to discharge the debts of the said "Godbert so far as his estate will make good. And whereas, the "greatest part of his debts are owing to Mr. Isaack Allerton of Plym., "Mercht., late brother of the said Zarah. The said Isaack hath given "leave to all other his creditors to be fully discharged before he "receives any thing of his particular debts to himself, desiring rather "to lose all than other men should lose any."

But about this time misfortunes began to come thick and heavy upon him. In 1634 his trading house at Machias was taken by the French and Indians and destroyed by fire with all its contents. In February of the same year, "Mr. Cradock's house at Marblehead was "burnt down about midnight, there being in it Mr. Allerton and many "fishermen whom he employed that season." The same year, returning from a trading voyage to Port Royal, "his pinace was cast 'away and entirely lost;" and on December 12, 1634, his wife died at Plymouth.

In 1635 his misfortunes still continued. In March, he was notified to leave Marblehead on account of his religious views, and in May he transferred all his houses, buildings and stages for curing fish at that place to his son-in-law, Moses Maverick. In August a bark belonging to him, which had been hired to transport Rev. Mr. Avery and his family, from Newbury to Marblehead, was lost at Cape Anne, and twenty-one persons perished, and in 1636, while returning from Penobscot, he was himself shipwreeked.

From 1636 to 1646, he resided most of the time at New Amsterdam, where he was engaged in the coasting and tobacco trades, having a warehouse on the East River, somewhere near where the foot of Maiden Lane now is. That his intelligence and enterprise were thoroughly appreciated by the Dutch settlers is shown by the circumstance that when, in 1643, a Council of eight were chosen from among the citizens, nominally to assist Governor Kieft, but in reality to manage him, Isaac Allerton was one of the number. While living at New Amsterdam, however, he made many voyages to Virginia and even to the West Indies, and frequently visited the New England Colonies; and notwithstanding the treatment he had received he often rendered good service to such residents of the Massachusetts settlement as came in his way. Thus Winthrop writes in 1643: "Three ministers which "were sent to Virginia were wrecked on Long Island; Mr. Allerton, of "New Haven, being there took great pains and care of them, and pro"cured them a very good pinace and all things necessary."

And in a letter from one John Haynes to Governor Winthrop, it is stated, "There is late news by a vessel that came to the Dutch and "from thence to New Haven, by Mr. Allerton. The substance thus: "that there has been a great battle between the King and Parliament "forces."

In 1644, he was wrecked at Scituate, on his way from New Haven to the Colonies, and at this time we find the first mention of his third wife. The date of this marriage is not known nor the surname and residence of his wife; her first name was Johanna, and he is generally thought to have married her at New Haven, but more probably she came from Marblehead or Salem. She appears to have been a woman of a most excellent character, and she outlived her husband many years. At the time of this marriage Isaac Allerton must have been nearly sixty years of age and the union proved to be a childless one.

About 1646 Isaac Allerton became a permanent resident of New Haven, and at that place he lived the remainder of his life, although making occasional trips to New Amsterdam and Massachusetts. He built himself a "grand house on the Creek, with Four Porches," on a home lot of two acres. One of the "famous spots" in New Haven is the north-west corner of Union and Fair streets where the house stood. A tablet has been placed on the present building bearing this full inscription:—"Isaac Allerton, a passenger of the "Mayflower," lived on this ground from 1646 to 1659."

It was in this house that the regicide Judges Whalley and Goffe found temporary shelter and concealment in 1661. Stiles, in his History of the Regicide Judges, says that they were protected by Mrs.

Eyres, but in this he is in error, for, having been born in 1653, she was but eight years old at the time.

It was Mrs. Johanna Allerton, the widow of Isaac Allerton, of the Mayflower, and Elizabeth Allerton, daughter of her son-in-law, Isaac<sup>2</sup>, who received and sheltered the judges.

An old plan of New Haven in 1748, shows the house of Simon Eyres, a descendant of his in this location, and mentions Isaac Allerton as the original owner. When he lived there the house stood on a gentle declivity sloping down to the harbor in front and to the creek on the west, affording a view of the waters of the Sound even to the coast of Long Island, and it must have been just such a home as would be most pleasant for the last years of one who had been so long a follower of the sea.

We find many mentions of Captain Isaac Allerton, as he is there called, in the old records of New Haven.

On March 10, 1647, the names of the people as they were seated in the meeting house were put upon record, and we find "Thomas Nash, Mr. Allerton and Bro. Perry," assigned to "the second seat of the cross seats at the end." It is to be noticed that as usual he is here given the honorable prefix "Mr."

The following account of a little difficulty which Mrs. Allerton had with the officials of the town, during her husband's absence upon one of his voyages, shows that human nature, especially as it develops itself in petty officers, was the same then as now. At a Court held at New Haven, August 6, 1650, "Mr. Allerton's fence was complained of. Jno. Cooper and the Marshall informed the Court that "Mrs. Allerton hath had notice of it three times and yet the fence is "not mended, but two places remain defective as John Cooper says." The Court ordered that Mr. Allerton pay two shillings for the two defective places, each time they have so warned. The fence does not appear to have been mended, for the same report is repeated from one court to another, and an additional fine of two shillings ordered each time, until December, when "Mr. Evans saith Mrs. Allerton desired

"him to acquaint the Court with the case." The explanation being that there had been a long misunderstanding between her and John Cooper about the location of the fence complained of. The Court said they "must rest on John Cooper's report because he is in a public "trust in this matter of fence, and therefore it is ordered that Mrs. "Allerton pay for the two defects, two shillings."

The misfortunes which had pressed so thickly upon him during the last years of his residence in Massachusetts, as to gain for him the name of the "unlucky," do not appear to have entirely deserted him yet, for we find the following record under date of November 2, 1652: "Robert Paine and William Meaker were complained of for absence "from training. The Court was informed that Mr. Allerton that "morning sent to Goodyears to get them free because of some urgent "occasion about his vessel. The Court considering that he did send "to ask leave, and it was upon that occasion, and the time the vessel "hath lain, and the afflicted state of Mr. Allerton otherwise, did for "this time pass it over without a fine."

Isaac Allerton was now approaching the threescore years and ten, which are the generally accepted limit of human existence; his life had been one of hardship, activity and exposure; his son Isaac was now grown to manhood, and able to manage in great part the extensive, although not very successful business in which he had been so long engaged, and for the last few years of his life he seems to have resided most of the time quietly in his house upon the Bay.

He died about the beginning of the year 1659, being then in all probability nearly seventy-five years old. He was buried in the old Burying Ground at New Haven, occuping the square in the very heart of the present city, upon which stands the Old State House and three churches. No monument or grave-stone has ever been found, nor is there any record of one being among those that were removed to the new Cemetery. At that time grave-stones were not made in this country, and the trouble and expense of importing them was so great that but few of durable material were used. But there can be little or no doubt that the dust of one of the Pilgrim Fathers reposes beneath the Elms of New Haven's public square. An Inventory of his estate, taken February 12, 1659, was presented to the Court April 5, 1659. "Mrs. Allerton being asked if there was any Will by her "husband, answered there was, but she thought her son had it with "him, who was now gone from home." On July 5, his son, having returned, presented the Will, but the estate being badly insolvent the business was referred to the Court of Magistrates in October. At that Court the writing presented as the last Will and Testament of Isaac Allerton, although informal and without date, was sworn to by John Harriman and Edward Preston, the subscribing witnesses, as sealed and subscribed by Mr. Allerton deceased, "whilst he had the "use of his understanding and memory in a competent degree."

This Will was little else than a few memoranda of debts due to him, which he desired his son Isaac and his wife to receive and pay out to his creditors as far as they would go, and it is only valuable to us as showing the nature and extent of his business. It begins thus: "An account of the debts due at the Dutch," meaning at New Amsterdam.

Among the debts are, "700 guilders by Tho. Hall by arbitration "of Captain Willett and Augustus Harman, about Captain Scarlet "which I paid out;" "900 guilders from John Peterson the Bore, as by George Woolseys book will appear." One item which helps to fix the date of this Will approximately is a memorandum of a sum owing him from Henry Brassen, for rent for eighteen months from October 1656, to the last of May 1658, for three rooms for three guilders a week. After the clause constituting his son and wife trustees, he adds, as if it were an after-thought, a memorandum of "a parcel of book lace in Captain Willett's hands 1300 and odd Guilders." Next to this is the place of the seal, and it concludes with these two sen-"My Brother Brewster owes me four score pounds and odd, "as the obligations appear." "Besides all my debts in Delaware Bay "and Virginia, which in my books will appear, and in Barbadoes what he can get." ISAAC ALLERTON, Senior."

No portrait of Isaac Allerton has come down to us, but he is said to have been slightly above the average height, of a spare but muscular frame, with dark hair and beard, a clear complexion and strongly marked features, a good looking rather than a handsome man. the great majority of his descendants there can be noticed a great similarity of development in the upper portion of the head and face, more especially noticeable in the forehead, eyes and nose, and there can be no doubt that these physical marks, together with certain well defined traits of character, have descended to us from our common ancestor. He was superior to all of his associates on the Mayflower, except possibly Winslow, and one or two others, in education, and superior to all of them in knowledge of the world and familiarity with business, and as his experience in these matters was so much greater, his mental horizon was far wider and his views more liberal and more tolerant of the opinions of others. The only wonder is that he was able to agree with them as long as he did. The services which he rendered to the Colony have been fully appreciated by a few careful historians only; poetry and romance have combined to spread the fame of Standish the soldier, or of Alden the clerk, while the record of Allerton's work is buried in the dusty recesses of English offices, but had there been no Standish among the Colonists there could have been found others as competent to battle with the Indians, while it is hardly possible that any man among them could have accomplished all that Isaac Allerton did in London, and it is not too much to say that the very existence of the Plymouth Colony depended for a time upon the success of his negotiations there.

For two centuries and a third the dust of the Pilgrim leader has slumbered beneath the elms of New Haven, but his memory is fresh to-day and will always endure, not only in the hearts of his descendants but in common with his heroic companions of the Mayflower, his name will be forever cherished by the entire people of that mighty nation, the corner-stone of whose foundations was so deeply and so enduringly laid by the Pilgrims of Plymouth.

SECOND GENERATION.

and 1585. Married first in Leyden, Holland, November 4, 1611, Mary Norris of Newbury, England, who died in Plymouth, Mass., February 25, 1625. Married second in 1626 Fear, daughter of Elder William Brewster (see Appendix, Note A). She died in Plymouth, Mass., December 12, 1634. He married third, prior to 1644, Johanna, whose maiden name is not known, she survived him many years, and died in New Haven, Conn., 1682. He died in New Haven "in the beginning of the year 1659". The Inventory of his estate was taken February 12, 1659, and was presented to the Court April 5, 1659.

Children. By first wife. Born in Leyden, Holland.

- PARTHOLOMEW, 2 born about 1612. He came over on the Mayflower with his parents, and was a resident of Plymouth in 1627, at the division, among the settlers, of the cattle brought from England, but shortly afterwards he accompanied his father to London, where he married and had children, but he never returned to America, and so far as is known no descendant of his has ever been found in this country.
- 3 <sup>2</sup>Remember<sup>2</sup>, born in 1614. She came over in the Mayflower, and was living in 1627, but probably died soon after, unmarried.

- 4 <sup>3</sup>Mary<sup>2</sup>, born June, 1616. She came over in the Mayflower.

  Married in 1636 Thomas Cushman, and from this family came the Cushman family of Massachusetts. She died in 1699, the last survivor of the Mayflower Pilgrims.
- 5 <sup>4</sup>SARAH<sup>2</sup>, born January, 1618. Married in 1637 Moses Maverick, of Marblehead. She had a large family of children, and died about 1655 or 1656. She came on the Ann in 1623, in care of her aunt Sarah Priest.

By second wife. Born in Plymouth, Mass.

6 <sup>5</sup>Isaac<sup>2</sup>, born 1630. Married first, Elizabeth——. Second, Elizabeth Willoughby.

NOTE.—Isaac 1 is said to have had at least two children, beside those mentioned above, but who died in infancy, one of whom was still-born on the Mayflower Monday, 11 December, 1620 (O. S.) This was the second child born since the Pilgrims left Holland.—Gov. Bradford's Journal.

THIRD GENERATION.

6 5ISAAC2 (ISAAC1).

Born in Plymouth, Mass., in 1630. Graduated from Harvard College in 1650, being in the seventh class that graduated from that institution. He accompanied his father, subsequently, on his voyages between Plymouth, New Haven, New Amsterdam and Virginia, and was associated with him in the coasting business. After his father's death in 1659, he purchased from the creditors of his estate, the dwelling-house, orchard and barn, with two acres of meadow, and in the New Haven Records we find a deed recorded, dated October 4, 1660, by which he conveys to his "Mother-in-law, "Mrs. Johanna Allerton, the house that she now dwells in at New "Haven, with all the furniture in it and the lands and appurtenances "belonging to it, to hold and enjoy during the term of her life, and "afterward to return into the possession of his daughter Elizabeth "Allerton and her heirs, and in case of her dyeing without issue, then "to return to him the first donor, and his heirs and executors without "intermission."

To this deed, after it was recorded, was added on the margin of the book the following "true record" of a postscript, "This deed, though "never witnessed when granted, I do hereby confirm, to all intents and "purposes, as if it had been authentically witnessed, and so sign and "seal the same in presence of

John Salmon,
William Corfield.

"March 10,

ISAAC ALLERTON."

Isaac married as early as 1652 a wife whose name was Elizabeth—but her maiden name or the exact place of their marriage is unknown. He resided in New Haven, Conn., and had three children born there. His wife probably died about 1660.

He bought land as early as 1655 at Wicomico, Northumberland County, Virginia, to which place he probably removed after the death of his wife, and married there as his second wife, about 1663, Elizabeth Willoughby, daughter of Captain Thomas Willoughby. Isaac Allerton was her third husband, she being widow of Simon Overzee and Colonel George Colclough. (See Appendix note B.)

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography says of him (Vol. 1, page 199), "Colonel Isaac Allerton of Westmoreland County, Virginia, was son of Isaac Allerton, one of the principal emigrants in the Mayflower. He was born at Plymouth, Mass., in 1630. Graduated at Harvard College in 1650, and soon came to Virginia and settled in Northumberland County (then including Westmoreland County.)" Colonel Allerton was sworn a Justice of Northumberland County, 22 April, 1663; was a member of the "Committee of the Association of Northumberland, Westmoreland and Stafford Counties," 1 November 1667 (Northumberland Records, also Henning Vol. 2, page 257). In September, 1675, as Major he was second in command to Colonel John Washington of Virginia forces against the Indians, and November 5, 1677, was second in "Committee of the Peace for Westmoreland County and of the Quorum." Member of the House of Burgesses February 1676–7. (Westmoreland Records.)

Virginia Carolorum, by Neill, page 347, recites the fact that "in early summer, 1675, the "Doegs," an Indian tribe of the Potomac, stole from the settlers and afterward killed some of them"—and then says:—"A joint movement of Virginians and Marylanders was arranged to go against them. The Virginians were under command of Colonel John Washington, Colonel George Mason and Major Isaac Allerton." Pages 386-387 say:—"In 1679, for the defense of the County from incursions of the Savages it was enacted that a garrison-house or store-house be creeted at the head of the four principal rivers and Major Isaac Allerton, grandson of Elder William Brewster of Plymouth, St. Leger Codd and Colonel George Mason were designated to superintend the building of a house sixty feet long, twenty-two feet broad and a magazine ten feet square, at Neapsico, near Occognar, on the Potomac River." He was appointed a member of the Council in 1683. (Salisbury Extracts.)

In a letter dated June 10, 1691, Governor Nicholson reports to the English Government that Richard Lee, Isaac Allerton and John Armistead, out of scruple of conscience, refused to take the oath and were left out of the Council.

Honorable Isaac Allerton, of Westmoreland County, Virginia, died in 1702. Will was dated 25 October, 1702, witnessed by Humphrey Morriss, John Gerrard, Daniel Ocanny. Proved 30 December, 1702. He describes himself as sick of body, and after a pious prelude, disposes of his estate as follows:—

"To church of Cople Parish £10 sterling, to daughter Sarah Lee and grandson Allerton Newton, two tracts of land in Stafford County, to my dear daughter Elizabeth Starr, also heirs who live in New England, 600 acres of land, part of a dividend of 2150 acres, on south side of Rappahanock River, to her the said Elizabeth and such of her children as she shall dispose of the same to, but in case the said Elizabeth be dead before the date of this my Will, I will and devise the same 600 acres of land to her eldest son and to his heirs forever." He also gives to her heirs the sum of 2000 pounds of tobacco, to be paid upon demand, and 5000 pounds to daughter Sarah Lee, and as daughter Travers has had a sufficient part or proportion of my estate given her in consideration of marriage, I do therefore, for memorial sake, give to her three daughters Elizabeth, Rebecca and Winifred Travers, the sum of 1000 pounds tobacco apiece when 17 years of age, or upon marriage, to grandson Allerton Newton 1000 pounds tobacco when 21. All the remaining part of my lands and tenements, not above bequeathed, how or wheresoever situate and being, to my well beloved son Willoughby Allerton and to his heirs forever. He also bequeaths his son all his personal estate, goods and chattels, real and personal of what kind, sort or quality soever the same may be, and appointed him his executor." (New England Historical and Genealogical Register, Vol. 44, pages 292–5.)

Children. By first wife. Born in New Haven, Conn.

- 7 ¹ELIZABETH³, born September 27, 1653. Married first December 23, 1675, Benjamin Starr, who died in 1678, age 31, leaving one child, Allerton Starr, born January 6, 1677. She married second July 22, 1679, Simon Eyres or Heyres, a sea captain, by whom she had several children, among them were Simon Eyres and Isaac Eyres. Simon died at New Haven, Conn., in 1695. She died November 17, 1740. (See N. E. H. and G. Reg., Vol. 44, pages 290-2.)
- 8 <sup>2</sup>Isaac<sup>3</sup>, born June 11, 1655; m----.
- 9 <sup>3</sup>Sarah<sup>3</sup>, born about 1660; m. Hancock Lee, son of Col. Richard Lee, of Virginia, as his second wife; his first wife was Mary, daughter of Col. William Kendall.

By second wife. Born in Virginia.

- 10 <sup>4</sup>Daughter<sup>3</sup>, born——; m. Mr. Newton. Had son Allerton Newton. (Mentioned in will).
- 11 <sup>5</sup>Frances<sup>3</sup>, born—; m. Capt. Samuel Travers. Had daughters Elizabeth, Rebecca and Winifred. (Mentioned in will).
- 12 <sup>6</sup>Willoughby<sup>3</sup>, born——; m. Hannah Keene, widow of John Bushrod.

Note.—The births of Isaac 2 Allerton's three eldest children are recorded in the Massachusetts Historical Society's Collection, third series Vol. 7, pages 248-9. The others are found in the New England Historical and Genealogical Register, Vol. 44, pages 290-2. Virginia Genealogies, by H. E. Hayden, page 300, says:—"Capt. Samuel Travers, born Circ 1660, son of William Travers, married about 1185, Frances, daughter of Colonel Isaac Allerton, of Virginia, the son of Isaac Allerton, merchant taylor of London, who emigrated to Massachusetts in the Mayflower."

"Old Churches, Ministers and Families of Virginia," by Bishop Meade, Vol. 2, pages 151-2:—"Here lies the body of John Bushrod, Gentleman, son of Bishrod by Apphira his wife. He was born in Gloucester, Virginia, January 30, 1663. He took for his wife, Hannah, daughter of William Keene of Northumberland and Elizabeth his wife, and left by her two sons and four daughters. Died 6 February, 1719, in the 56th year of his age."

FOURTH GENERATION.

Born at New Haven, June 11, 1655. He accompanied his father to Virginia when a child, but returned to New Haven about 1683, and resided there, and possibly at Norwich, in the same State, during most of the remainder of his life, following his son, John<sup>4</sup>, to Coventry, Rhode Island, shortly before his death, the exact date of which is not known. He was a farmer, and also a dealer in the products of the country, a quiet business man, taking but little part in public affairs, but it is said, serving with credit in the Indian wars. (See Appendix, note C.)

Children. Born in New Haven, Conn.

- 14 <sup>2</sup>Jesse<sup>4</sup>, born 1686 or 1687.
- 15 <sup>3</sup>Isaac<sup>4</sup>, born about 1696. Died young.
- 16 4Thomas4, born (?).

NOTE.—4 Thomas 4 is not in the former Edition and is conjectural. He came to Norwich at the same time as 1 John 4 in 1711, and apparently with him. Purchased a farm of Rene Grignon. Had his cattle mark recorded in 1712. In March 1714-15 he conveyed the farm back to Grignon, and no other record has been found of him. He was probably another son of 2 Isaac 3.

12 6WILLOUGHBY3, (ISAAC2, ISAAC1).

Born in Virginia and married Mary Keene, widow of John Bushrod and daughter of William Keene. Willoughby died 1723-4. They had two #### Children.

- 18 <sup>2</sup>Isaac<sup>4</sup>, born—; m. Anne, daughter of Gawin Corbins. Had children 19 <sup>1</sup>Gawin<sup>5</sup>, 20 <sup>2</sup>Isaac<sup>5</sup> and 21 <sup>3</sup>Willoughby<sup>5</sup>, who all died in youth.

Note.—All male descendants died before 1760 and it is not deemed necessary to go into their history in detail. A reference to the New England Historical and Genealogical Register, Vol. 44, pages 290 to 295, will give every fact possible for this volume to give.

FIFTH GENERATION.

Born in New Haven, Conn., about 1585. Married Elizabeth—. He removed to Norwich, Conn., about 1711 or 1712, and was one of the first Selectmen in 1721. From there he removed to Warwick, Rhode Island, where he was admitted as a freeman, May, 1739. On August 3, 1741, the west end of the town, where he lived and had his farm, was set off as Coventry, and he was admitted a freeman in that town, May, 1742. (Rhode Island Vital Record.) His wife, Elizabeth, whose maiden name is unknown, survived him many years and removed, with a daughter who married a Mr. Sweet, to the State of New York. He died in Coventry about 1750. His children were born in Norwich, Conn., and the Town Records show the dates of their birth to be as follows:

Children.

- 22 <sup>1</sup>Esther<sup>5</sup>, born July 11, 1713.
- 23 <sup>2</sup>Sarah<sup>5</sup>, born October 14, 1715.
- 24 <sup>3</sup>Mary<sup>5</sup>, born March 24, 1717-8; m. Nathaniel Spencer, of Warwick, R. I., October 20, 1740.
- 25 <sup>4</sup>Joнn<sup>5</sup>, born August 23, 1720; m. widow Rosanna Cooper.
- 26 <sup>5</sup>Richard<sup>5</sup>, born March 2, 1722-3. Died in infancy.
- 27 6Isaac<sup>5</sup>, born August 15, 1725; m. Lucy Spaulding.
- 28 <sup>7</sup>ELIZABETH<sup>5</sup>, born November 25, 1728. Died young.
- 29 <sup>8</sup>Anna<sup>5</sup>, born October 10, 1731; m. Thomas Straight, November 13, 1755.
- 30 <sup>9</sup>Jonathan<sup>5</sup>, born September 18, 1735.

Born at New Haven, in 1686 or 1687. In him the roving disposition of the family, which had been dormant for two generations, re-asserts itself, and it has ever been a prominent characteristic of his descendants. He married early in life and lived in various parts of Connecticut and Massachusetts; one account states that he died in the latter State, while another states that he went to New Jersey with his son Zachariah and died there at an advanced age. He undoubtedly had a comparatively large family, but of his daughters absolutely nothing is known, and indeed no attempt has been made to trace the female members of the fourth and fifth generations. The tradition that several of his sons were victims of the Wyoming massacre is given elsewhere in this volume.

SIXTH GENERATION.

Born at Norwich, Conn., August 23, 1720. Married July 17, 1754, Rosanna Cooper, widow of Mensin Cooper and whose maiden name was Burlingame. He resided at Coventry, Conn., where he was a cooper and farmer. He injured one of his fingers while placing a back-log upon an old-fashioned wood fire, from which blood poisoning resulted, eausing his death. He was buried in the family grave yard on his farm in Coventry, R. I.

Children. Born at Coventry, R. I.

- 32 <sup>1</sup>Jerusha<sup>6</sup>, born July 21, 1755. Died unmarried in 1798.
- 33 <sup>2</sup>Sarah<sup>6</sup>, born June 8, 1757. Died unmarried in 1837.
- 34 <sup>3</sup>Freelove<sup>6</sup>, born August 11, 1759; m. a Mr. Albro of Saratoga County, New York.
- 35 <sup>4</sup>Roger<sup>6</sup>, born October 1, 1761; m. Mrs. Elsie Phillips.
- 36 <sup>5</sup>Joнм<sup>6</sup>, born February 13, 1764-5; m. Molly Barrett.
- 37 <sup>6</sup>Betsey<sup>6</sup>, born July 3, 1766. She went with her sister Freelove to Saratoga County, New York, and married there Samuel Campbell, by whom she had several children.
- 38 <sup>7</sup>Russell<sup>6</sup>, born November 27, 1768. Settled in Saratoga County, New York. Died unmarried in 1800.
- 39 <sup>8</sup>Rose Anne<sup>6</sup>, born March 11, 1771. Died unmarried in Coventry, Rhode Island, in 1836.

Born at Norwich, Conn., August 15, 1725. Married about 1745, Lucy Spaulding. (See Appendix note E.) But little is known with certainty of his early years. He lived at Canterbury and Plainfield, and followed the business of builder as well as being a farmer. In appearance he was a tall and robust man, and had considerable local fame as an athlete, until he sustained an injury to one of his legs while building a bridge, from the effects of which he never entirely recovered. Prior to the War of the Revolution he was quite wealthy, but having shown his devotion to the Continental cause by taking the paper money of the provinces to a large amount in exchange for produce and supplies furnished to the troops, he eventually lost the greater part of his property. He removed to Amenia, in Dutchess County, New York, in 1792, and died there December 26, 1807.

During his lifetime he possessed several mementoes of the Mayflower and of the earlier years of the Plymouth Colony, among others a broad-axe which had been used to hew the timbers of the first house built by the Colonists, and a fuzee-gun taken in battle from an Indian warrior, but unfortunately since his death these relies have been lost. His wife survived him and died in 1813, aged 86 years, and they are both buried in the Cemetery in Amenia, Dutchess County, N. Y.

Born in Windham, Conn.

44 <sup>5</sup>ALICE<sup>6</sup>, born May 23, 1765; m., late in life, David Runnels, and died in 1852 without issue.

Born in Plainfield, Conn.

45 <sup>6</sup>Saran<sup>6</sup>, born February 12, 1770; m. George James, a farmer of Rhode Island, by whom she had several children, and with whom she removed to Dutchess County, New York, where she died in August, 1858, the last descendant of the Allertons of the sixth generation. Many details for this genealogy were obtained from her.

Note.—George James had a daughter, Polly James, born January 16, 1794, who married Moses Castle, February 10, 1813. Their son, Theodore H. Castle, born August 9, 1826, is father of E. M. Castle, who lives (1899) at Dresden, Vates County, New York.

Born in Massachusetts about 1730. Removed to New Jersey and was twice married; by his first wife he had several daughters of whom nothing is known. By his second wife he had six sons and one daughter. # 40 <sup>1</sup>JONATHAN<sup>6</sup>, (ISAAC<sup>5</sup>, JOHN<sup>4</sup>, ISAAC<sup>3</sup>, ISAAC<sup>2</sup>, ISAAC<sup>1</sup>).

Born at Plainfield, Connecticut, September 15, 1746. Married September 17, 1772, in Sharon, Conn., Bathsheba daughter of Joshua Mead. His early life was passed on his father's farm, where he obtained a practical knowledge of farming as there practiced, and also of his father's trade of builder and house joiner. He also taught school in winter, and for several years he was so engaged at Amenia, in Dutchess County, New York. He was well educated for those days and an excellent penman, being much in demand to draw contracts, deeds, and similar papers. He served in the War of the Revolution until compelled by sickness to return home, and evidently shared his father's confidence in the Continental currency, for we are told that he sold his interest and that of his mother-in-law, in the homestead farm, for $2,000, and took his pay in that money, by which he lost nearly his entire property. In 1783, in company with other of his fellow-townsmen, he purchased a tract of land, known as the Van Schaick patent in the town of Cairo, Greene County, New York, and removed there with his family. Here he taught school for several winters, and after filling a prominent place in the affairs of the little settlement for many years, he died August 10, 1806. His wife survived him for a long time and died July 4, 1838, aged 84 years, and was buried beside him in the family grave yard on the farm.

Born at Canterbury, Conn., December 25, 1753. He was unusually well educated for those times and studied medicine with Dr. Fitch of New Haven, and surgery with Dr. Spaulding of Norwich, a relative of his mother, and became eminent as a physician and surgeon. The History of Dutchess County, New York, by J. H. Smith, Town of Amenia, page 345, says: "Among the early physicians was Dr. Reuben Allerton, son of Isaac Allerton, of Windham County, Conn., who purchased the farm of Abner Gillet, in 1787. He preceded his father a few years, and began the practice of medicine about 1778. In 1785 he removed to the Oblong, where for a time he lived in the John Reed house. Afterward, and until his death he lived near the Presbyterian church, now in South Amenia.

It was probably immediately after the completion of his medical studies that he entered the service of the Colonies as Surgeon in the Regiment of Colonel Hopkins in 1777. Page 354 says: "Roswell Hopkins was Colonel of the Sixth Regiment and participated in the Battle of Saratoga. Dr. Reuben Allerton was Surgeon of the Regiment in that campaign." A portion of his instruments are still in the possession of his descendants.

He was married in Sharon, Conn., on September 1, 1778 to Lois Atherton by his Colonel, who was a Justice of the Peace in Amenia, New York. (See Births, Marriages and Deaths of Sharon, Conn., by Lawrence Van Alstyne). Lois Atherton was born 1757, in Newton, New Jersey, and was a daughter of John and Lucy (Sawyer) Atherton of Sharon, Conn. John Atherton was one of the five sons of James Atherton who came to Sharon, as an early settler, from Coventry, Conn.

Born at Amenia, Dutchess County, New York, November 7, 1776. He was taken by his parents to Greene County in childhood, where he resided during the remainder of his life. He was a farmer by occupation, and being by nature both industrious and intelligent, he was unusually successful and acquired considerable property during a long and upright life. He married, April 29, 1804, Polly Bassett, then 24 years old, and like himself a descendant of the Pilgrims, by whom he had a large family. He died at Cairo, in Greene County, September 14, 1862.

Children. Born in Cairo, Greene County, New York.

110 <sup>1</sup>Mead<sup>8</sup>, born February 2, 1805. He worked on his father's farm until manhood, attending school when the farm work allowed him to do so, and he himself taught in the winter of 1826. In 1827 and 1828 he conducted a country store at Gay Head, in Greene County; and from 1830 to 1844 he carried on the same business at Port Gibson, Ontario County, New York, where he was married, October 19, 1834, to Lavinia Blackmar, of Freehold, Greene County. In 1860 he removed to Newark, in Wayne County, New York, where he resided until his death, February 19, 1884. He was an enterprising and successful business man, having acquired a competency and retired from active business before his removal to Newark, and was highly esteemed as a public spirited and influential citizen wherever he resided. He was Supervisor of the Town of Manchester, in Ontario County, in 1846, 1847 and 1848. He had no children.

He was always deeply interested in the old and honorable family, of which he was himself a worthy member, and after his retirement from business he devoted part of his time to the work of compiling a genealogy, and left a large and interesting manuscript, from which a great portion of the facts used in preparing the genealogical part of this work was obtained.

Born at Canterbury, Conn., February 14, 1785. He accompanied his parents in childhood, first to Dutchess County, and afterward to Madison County. He decided at the age of 14 to become a minister of the Baptist Church, and it is said that before arriving at manhood he had charge of a congregation of Indian converts at Sangerfield. From 1805 to 1807 he preached at Hillsdale, New York, and in the latter year went to North-East, in Dutchess County. He was married, March 21, 1809, to Sylvia Winchell, daughter of Colonel Martin Winchell, of North-East. In the war of 1812, he acted as Chaplain in a militia regiment, and in 1815 assumed the charge of the Baptist Church at Sherburne, in Chenango County, New York, and in 1818, he went to Norwich, in the same County. From 1820 to 1840, he resided at New York City and in Putnam and Ulster Counties, and during this period he published several books on religious topics. From 1840 to 1849, he resided in the Town of Deer Park, in Orange County, and in the latter year he returned to Chenango County, and resided there and in the adjoining County of Broome, until his death, which occurred at Port Crane, in Broome County, February 14, 1875. He was thrice married, but had no children by his second or third wives.

   1859. Unmarried. She was a teacher by profession.
- 78 4SAMUEL WATERS7, (REUBEN6, ISAAC5, JOHN4, ISAAC3, ISAAC2, ISAAC1).

Born at Amenia, Dutchess County, New York, December 5, 1785. Married, March 26, 1808, Hannah Hurd, born 1788, in South Dover, Dutchess County. His father was a physician and he also studied for that profession, but changed his mind and learned a trade, becoming a merchant tailor and had a country store. In 1828 he was one of the promoters in building a woolen factory. In 1833 the Democrats reduced the tariff and nearly all the factories built in New England, or near there, were monuments of ruin, and from 1835 to 1836 nearly every man who tried to build up his country was ruined. Samuel W. was in that condition, and in 1837 he tried to restore his fortune and went West, to Iowa, with his oldest son, Henry, where he was taken sick. He came home without means, and worked in a store for two years. During the fifty-seven years of his life prior to 1842, he lived nearly all the time in Amenia. He was for a long time a Trustee of the Amenia Presbyterian Church, but was not a communicant, as he was a strong Universalist. He was Deputy Sheriff of Dutchess County for three years. In 1842 he removed to Yates County, New York, where he rented a farm, and in 1848 bought a farm in Wayne County, where he lived the remainder of his life.

He was a very industrious man, never idle a minute, and brought up his children to believe that true religion is "Love to God and Good Will to Man." He was a man of sterling integrity, lived to a ripe old age and died August 10, 1885, aged 99 years and 8 months. With the exception of his youngest son, his children all received a seminary education. Hannah Hurd, his wife, was the eldest daughter of Ebenezer and Rebecca (Phillips) Hurd. Ebenezer Hurd had a large farm in Amenia, and besides farming dealt in cattle and sheep. He had three sons who were also farmers and stock dealers. Ebenezer Hurd was familiarly called "Uncle Eb." and was well known through the eastern part of New York State, where he was constantly purchasing cattle and sheep, which he drove to New York City to market. He was the first large cattle buyer and drover, and returned from market on horseback with his saddle-bags loaded down with the gold and silver in which he had been paid. He had large dealings with Henry Astor, a brother of the famous John Jacob Astor.

Ebenezer Hurd was a son of Daniel Hurd, who was born in Killingly, Conn., and who married Betsy Allen, of Vermont, a cousin of Colonel Ethan Allen.

Of the nine children born to Samuel Waters Allerton, eight were alive in January, 1899, and at a combined age of over 630 years, showing the rugged ancestral stock from which they descend.

Children. Born in Amenia, Dutchess County, New York.

- 162 <sup>1</sup>Cornelia<sup>8</sup>, born March 26, 1809; m. Walter Sherman, a successful and thrifty farmer and cattle dealer, and was blessed with three children, Mary, David H. and Samuel. She was a Methodist, having a strong personality and her heart filled with charity and good will to all. When eighty years of age some children were brought from New York City to find homes among the farmers, and finding that they were slow in taking them, she volunteered to take six, which gave her so much worry that her son had to hire them kept afterward at some other place.
- 163 <sup>2</sup>AMARYLLIS<sup>8</sup>, born January 1, 1812; m. Shadrac Sherman, of Amenia, a cattle dealer, and a successful man. They had three children, Alice R., Hannah L., Lois J. She is a woman of strong personality, and devoted to her husband and children. She is at present (1899) eighty-seven years of age and attends to her business affairs with great ability.
- 164 <sup>3</sup>Henry Reuben<sup>8</sup>, born December 25, 1814. Died January 29, 1899. Unmarried. The following tribute to his memory was written by his brother Orville Hurd Allerton, or Newark, New York: "He was the eldest son, born on Christmas day, and proved to be the best Christmas present his parents could have received, for, never marrying, he lived with them nearly all his life and was a good, kind son. They had no fear that vicious habits or evil communications would corrupt his honor or integrity. Being with his mother when she "passed to the great beyond," his was the hand that erected the monument to her memory, and had engraved, in the hope and belief that God would reunite them, "God is Love."

Early in life he chose the occupation of farming as his life work, and continued in it until his death. He was educated in the district school. Until his fourteenth year he worked on his father's farm; he then, for two years, hired out at farm work, receiving seven dollars per month for eight months, and working for his board the remaining four months. When fifteen years of age he could do a man's work.

He continued a "wage earner" for seven or eight years, and commanded the highest wages paid at that time for farm labor. With Henry R. Allerton labor was a pleasure, his industry great, his labor tireless. He inherited unswerving honesty and morality, and was a strictly temperate man. Nature endowed him with an extraordinary memory, which was strengthened by much reading, making him a good historian; he was also a good mathematician and well versed in literature. From early life he was a great reader. When a young man his uncle Milton B. Allerton, gave him a copy of Doctor Benjamin Franklin's Works, with which he was much impressed. Always the "first one up," he believed with Franklin that "he that rises late may trot all day and not overtake his business." In early manhood he, in company with his father, went to Iowa, where he bought six hundred and forty acres of land, about twenty miles from the city of Dubuque. His father assisted him to build a log house and returned to Dutchess County, New York, by stage, being stricken on the way with Dumb Ague, a disease then unknown in Dutchess County. The second year after his father left him, Henry was stricken with the disease to such an extent that he lost the use of both arms and legs. His father took him to his home in Dutchess County, but it was three years before he recovered their use. In 1850 he sold his Iowa farm, together with one hundred head of cattle, and bought the Lathrop and Blackman farms, containing two hundred and thirty acres, on which his father was located. Father and son worked the farm together and were successful. Henry, by industry and wise investments accumulated more than a competency, and at his death was the wealthiest citizen of the town in which he lived.

For the past two decades he lived in the village of Newark, tilling a small farm of twenty acres, happy with his books and the companionship of his brothers and sisters, and especially with his three sisters with whom he made his home, Mrs. Amanda H. Tabor, Lois J. and Rebecca H. Allerton, to whom he was more than a brother, giving them the benefit of his experience in business affairs, and the pleasure of companionship enhanced by his richly stored mind.

Liberal minded and honest in all his dealings with his fellow men, quiet in disposition, an independent thinker, not accepting the views of any unless by his own reflection he thought them reasonable and just—he "venerated the man whose heart was pure, whose actions and whose deeds gave evidence that he was honest in the Sacred Cause." He was a noble type of good heroic manhood.

Born at Amenia, New York, April 17, 1816. Married, January 15, 1845, Eliza Adelaide Dean, of Dresden, Yates County, New York. She was a natural and self-taught artist, and had she applied herself to a thorough cultivation of the art, would have made her mark as a portrait and landscape painter. As a wife, no more true, noble or trustworthy heart ever beat in human breast.

Orville, when ten years of age, began work in a comb factory, intending to learn the trade, but, in a few months the proprietor sold out and moved away. He then for a time did light work upon a farm, for which he received, as pay, the sum of three cents a day.

ORVILLE HURD ALLERTON, Jr. (360.)

An uncle was chiefly engaged in the live stock business. When Orville was eleven years old his uncle took him out of school to help him drive a drove of cattle to the New York market, one hundred miles distant. When twenty-one miles from home, Orville became so homesick that he could not be induced to go farther. Two men on horseback were going eight miles toward his home. Orville kept up with them on foot and reached home that evening, averaging over five miles per hour for four hours. Love of home has always been a strong feature of his character. Five times he drove cattle to New York with his uncle, each time on foot. He was paid twenty-five cents per day and steamboat fare to Poughkeepsie, New York, thirty miles from home, which distance he then walked, unless he happened to find a teamster who would allow him to ride part of the way. His education up to his fourteenth year was received in the district school and the select school of Dr. Leonard and the Amenia seminary. At the age of thirteen he became a clerk in a store at Nassau, New York, and later, at Dover Plains, New York. went to Elmira, New York, where he secured a position as clerk in a large store. In 1839 he received letters from his brother Henry, who had settled in Iowa, urging him to visit him, and telling him that he could there better his financial condition in a store in that State. Orville left Elmira, October 4th, on board a packet boat on the Erie Canal. At Buffalo he took passage on a steamer crowded with five hundred and twenty-one passengers. When entering Saginaw Bay a furious storm arose. Nearly all the passengers were seasick and frightened, believing the boat would be wrecked. The passengers cried and prayed. After several hours had passed, a safe anchorage was made in the St. Clair river. At a "praise meeting" held that night, the Captain said that in twenty years' experience he had never seen so severe a storm as that through which they had just passed. Orville arrived in safety in Chicago, Illinois, and went from there by stage to Dubuque, Iowa, two hundred miles distant. The roads were in such condition that frequently the passengers had to help pry the wheels out of the mud. He walked from Dubuque, twenty miles, to his brother Henry's home.

The store he entered was a very crude affair, the stock being principally plug tobacco, clay pipes and whisky. He was there but five weeks, when he returned to Elmira. His experience as clerk and book-keeper for twelve years, gave him a thorough knowledge of business principles, and laid the foundation of his character. Integrity and industry enabled him, in later years to reach a high measure of success. He came to Newark, New York, in 1842, and began a mercantile career which continued for twenty-five years. After thirtyseven years of indoor work he found it necessary, on account of failing health, to change his business. He sold his store and goods and accepted, in 1868, a position offered him by his brother Samuel W. Allerton, as superintendent of the Pennsylvania Central Stock Yards at Pittsburg, Penn., a position of great responsibility and liberal compensation. He remained there seventeen years, and retired at that time, after fifty-four years of active business life, with the confidence and esteem of his employers.

He is possessed of strong controversial talent, is an able writer, and some of the best articles in the public press are from his pen. They are concise, clear and very argumentative. He is of liberal mind, a strong believer in free thought and opinion; is consistent in politics and can, when called upon, give an address at once pointed and convincing.

His measure of success in life he owes chiefly to promptness in business, order, industry and integrity. The man who has made money by strict attention to his own business, and by non-interference with the affairs of others, he considers a good example to follow. He has been very successful in the purchase and sale of Western railroad stocks and other speculative operations, and has accumulated a large property.

He now (1899) lives in Newark, New York, where he has invested a large sum in the purchase of a fine farm of 160 acres and has erected one of the best and finest residences in the county, which, with its fine garden and grounds, is an ornament to Newark.

Born at Amenia, Dutchess County, New York. Married July 1, 1860, Pamilla W. Thompson, of Peoria, Illnois, and after her death married her sister, Agnes C. Thompson, March 15, 1882. Samuel Waters Allerton was the youngest of nine children. When he was but seven years of age he received an impression which has influenced his whole life. His father had failed, (through causes noted in his history), and the sheriff was selling the property; among the property were two horses which had been highly prized; his mother shed tears when they were "bid off." Samuel threw his arms around his mother's neck, saying, that he would be a man, and provide for her. In after life he kept his promise. Samuel was the youngest of nine children, and lived at Amenia until he was fourteen years of age, and had to commence work at the age of twelve. His father removed to Yates County, New York, in 1842, and rented a farm.

Samuel worked with him until they had saved enough money to buy a farm for his father, in Wayne County, New York.

Samuel then, with his brother Henry, rented a farm, and made fifteen hundred dollars, they then bought a farm, jointly, in Newark, Wayne County, New York, for four thousand five hundred dollars, paying the fifteen hundred dollars down.

Samuel then rented a farm, and at the end of three years had saved thirty-two hundred dollars. He then went to Newark, where he worked with his brothers, on their farm, and traded, in a small way, in live stock, in Wayne County. He went to New York and Albany, and upon his return, said to his brother Henry: "I believe I know as much as the dealers I met, and I think my services are worth more than nine dollars a month, and, as we now have the farm paid for, and three thousand dollars in money, I will settle with you, you taking the farm, and I taking the money." His brother replied: "If you continue as you are, in a few years you will own the best farm in this country; but if you wish to try the live stock trade, all right, we will settle on this basis. This is all the advice I have to give you; you will run across smart and tricky men, but they always die poor—make a name and character for yourself, and you are sure to win."

The first hundred cattle Samuel ever bought, he sold in New York City, where the Fifth Avenue Bank now stands. It was the worst market there had been in ten years, and he lost seven hundred dollars. This absolutely made him sick, for he got his money together in small sums. He had an elderly uncle, who had made a success in life, who said to him—"my boy you are pretty sick, but don't lose your courage. I never found but one dead sure thing, and that was hoeing corn at fifty cents a day. If you make money, you must sometimes lose it. Try it over."

Samuel went to Erie. Women had burned down bridges, because trains would not stop for dinner, this made a break in the line, and live stock had to be unloaded and driven to Dunkirk, at which place he bought one hundred cattle, shipped them over the Erie R. R., encountered a great flood, arrived in New York, and found the market short on cattle. This venture netted him three thousand dollars, and gave him courage. He drifted West, and for the first year fed and raised cattle in Illinois.

Mr. Sturgis failed in Cineinnati, Ohio, the national financial system was so weak that it created a panic, and wiped out about all Samuel had. He became sick, concluded he could not stand the Western climate, and bought an interest in a store with his brother, in Newark, New York. Selling goods was not agreeable to him, as he desired to deal on a larger scale. He had met a daughter of Astor C. Thompson, in Fulton County, Illinois. After he had regained his health, he gathered together what money he had left, and borrowed $5000, and started West. The young lady was the principal attraction, he went directly to Fulton County, Illinois, where he traded a little. He came to Chicago in March, 1860, and was married on July 1st, of that year, to Pamilla W. Thompson, at Peoria, Illinois. He settled in Chicago, believing that Chicago, "where the world turned around every twenty-four hours" was the proper place to trade in.

He commenced, in a small way, to buy and sell live stock. There was no general market in Chicago, except for a short time during the winter. Shippers generally took their live stock to the Eastern markets. About this time there came a decided break in the Chicago market. Samuel desired to buy, but he had formed no connection with any bank here, and the question was how to get the money. Among his few acquaintances in Chicago was a gentleman by the name of Tobey, whom he asked to take him to a bank, and identify him. Mr. Tobey was willing to do so, at the same time saying, that he could not guarantee anything. Mr. Allerton said that he only desired to be identified, he would arrange the balance. Mr. Tobey took him to George

Smith's bank, a bank that issued Georgia money, and furnished the currency for the great North-west. He said to Mr. Willard, "If I will pay for three telegrams, one to Halstead, Chaimberlain & Co., asking if they will pay my draft; one to your own correspondent, to ascertain if Halstead, Chamberlain & Co. are all right; and one to my own bank to assure you that I am all right—can I come down to-morrow and sell you a sight draft?" He replied, "Yes." Mr. Allerton went back to the Stock Yards, and bought all the hogs in the market, and went down with a draft for Eighty Thousand Dollars, asking Mr. Willard if he had received replies to his telegrams. His answer was, that he had, and that they were very favorable. Mr. Allerton handed him the draft. Mr. Willard said he had not supposed he would want more than five thousand dollars, and that he could not discount so large a draft on telegrams. Mr. Allerton said, "You know Mr. Tobey, you do not think he would introduce a thief to you? Mr. Willard would not discount the draft. Allerton found himself in a position where he must have the money. What to do he did not know! He accidentally met a gentleman from Syracuse, and asked him if he was acquainted with any banks in Chicago? He replied, "Yes, Aikens & Norton." He took Mr. Allerton to them, and introduced him. Mr. Aikens looked over the telegrams, and signified his willingness to comply with Mr. Allerton's request, but said he would have to charge one per cent. In this way Mr. Allerton became a customer of Aikens & Norton. The Civil War broke out. The nation needed money. Congress passed the National Bank Act, issuing bonds to secure the circulation. This was a step in the right direction toward a National Currency, as the nation had never had anything but Red Dog and Bob-tailed currency; and to start a National Bank would aid the government, and give the people a uniform currency, because the nation was back of it, but for some reason, the people seemed slow to start National Banks. Mr. Allerton asked Mr. Aikens why he did not start a National Bank. He replied, "because he feared he could not get the stock taken." Mr. Allerton said, that he, with five other men, would take ten thousand dollars each. In this way the First National Bank of Chicago was started.

Mr. Allerton wrote the first letter ever published in the Chicago Tribune in favor of organizing a Union Stock Yards, so as to bring all buyers and sellers together, which made it the greatest live-stock market in the world, and also made Chicago a money center. He always had the desire to own a farm, when he succeeded in accumulating enough money. He bought land, and is to-day the largest farmer in this country, who cultivates his land; cultivating about forty thousand acres, in the very best manner. He loves to buy land that does not produce anything, and make it bloom and blossom like a rose. This may be said to be his hobby.

He is largely interested in ranches, and gold mines; has interests in Dakota, Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and New York, and has always been interested in the live-stock trade, and continues to ship live-stock and cattle to New York and England. In Farms, Stock-Yards, Street Railroads, are his principal business interests.

He received his early political education from Henry Clay and Horace Greeley and has always been a Republican.

In 1844, when Henry Clay was a candidate for President, the issue was, "shall we put a tariff on iron and inaugurate free schools." The Democrats said, "a tariff would build up home monopolies and free schools would be a burden and a tax on the people." Clay replied, "give the people free schools so as to increase their intelligence, their energy and industry, and home competition would reduce the price of iron," (it being then one hundred dollars a ton). Believing the free school system made this great Nation, and remembering the words of Clay, Mr. Allerton, by giving the land, has had school houses built on each of his farms.

He is a firm believer in an proper tariff for the interest of our Nation. Like an individual man, the Nation is individual and no other nation will take care of it. He believes that this Nation should have a sound currency, as good as the bank notes of England, and which should be good in every nation on the globe; that the weakness of the National financial system has destroyed the character of many young men who tried to better their condition by building up some industry, and who lost their position and character by the periodical panics; that a great Nation of free people should have brains enough to frame a financial system that would be as sound as the Bank of England. He believes that all men should try to lead a successful life; this he owes to himself, his friends and his people. The successful men of our Nation have done much to build up the colleges, schools and hospitals, from which the public has received a large benefit. If the man of wealth invests his money and promotes industries that give employment to the people, he is a public benefactor. There has not been a boy born in a hundred years, starting out in life right, but who could gain a competency. That young men have a better opportunity now than when he was a boy; have better teachers, better schools; labor is higher, and the necessities of life are cheaper. He once ran for mayor of Chicago in the interest of Civil Service with no pledges to any one, only as a good citizen to do his duty; as there was nothing to be gained as mayor except to leave a good name to his children, and to give the city an honest, clean administration. He intended to employ the best engineers in the country to settle the vexed question of engineering, and, in all departments of the city government, to put the right man in the right place, irrespective of politics.

He carried the North division of the city, and the other intelligent wards, but was beaten by a sharp political trick of his opponent, (Harrison). The Democratic aldermen used their influence to elect Republican aldermen, with the understanding that they in turn would help elect a Democratic mayor.

APPENDIX.

Note A.

ELDER WILLIAM BREWSTER, the progenitor of the family in America, was born during the last half of 1566 or first half of 1567. The date of his birth is determined by an affidavit made in Leyden, Holland, June 25, 1609, in which he, wife Mary, and son Jonathan, declare their ages to be respectively 42, 40, 16. Bradford says: (N. E. H. & G. Reg. Vol. 18, pp. 18 to 20.) He was "nere foreskore years of age (if not all out) when he dyed." This statement agrees with the affidavit. He was born in Scrooby, Northamptonshire, England.

His father, William Brewster, was appointed by Archbishop Sandys, Bishop of York, in January, 1575-6, receiver of Scrooby and bailiff of the Manor House in that place, belonging to the Archbishop, and to have a life term of both offices. The Manor House was the same in which Cardinal Woolsey had made his last stop, before reaching home, on his final journey, on compulsory retirement from Court, after banishment by King Henry VIII, thirty years earlier.

The parish register of Scrooby does not begin until 1695, and no record of William Brewster's birth, baptism or marriage has been found. He matriculated at Peterhouse, Cambridge, December 3, 1580, but it does not appear that he remained long enough to take his degree. He is next found as a "discreete and faithfull" assistant of William Davison, Secretary of State to Queen Elizabeth—accompanying that gentleman on his embassy to the Netherlands, in August, 1585, and serving him at Court, after his return, until his downfall in 1587.

After the retirement of Davison, Brewster returned to Scrooby, where he lived "in good esteeme amongst his friends and ye gentlemen of those parts, espetially the godly and religious, doing much good in promoting and furthering religion." In 1590, he was appointed to administer the estate of his father, who died in the summer of that year, leaving a widow, Prudence.

His father was postmaster of Scrooby at the time of his death, and it is said, that his grand-father held the same office.

Sir John Stanhope, who became Postmaster General in June, 1593, appointed one Samuel Bevercote to succeed the deceased Brewster. Through the influence of Davison, however, the old Postmaster's son William was soon appointed to the office, which he held until September 30, 1607. (o. s.)

His residence at Scrooby was the old Manor House. There the members of the Pilgrim Church were accustomed to meet on the Lord's day, when Brewster "with great love, entertained them when they came, making provission for them, to his great charge."

The Pilgrims attempting to move to Holland, in the latter part of 1607, were imprisoned at Boston, through the treachery of the Master of the ship that was engaged to transport them.

Bradford says that Brewster "was ye cheefe of those that were taken at Boston, and suffered ye greatest loss, and of ye seven that were kept longest in prison, and after bound over to ye assises."

Through Bradford also, we learn that Brewster, after he reached Holland, suffered many hardships, and spent most of his means in providing for his "many children."

He was not so well fitted as the other Pilgrims for the hard labor which became their common lot, yet he bore his condition cheerfully.

During the latter part of the twelve years spent in Holland, he increased his income very much by teaching, and by the profits from a printing press, which he—by the help of some friends—set up at Leyden. At the end of that time, "for sundrie, weightee and solid reasons," which are duly set forth in Bradford's history, among which "and which was not least," was a true missionary spirit, the church at Leyden resolved to emigrate to Virginia. Brewster, the Elder of the Church, who had been chosen to that office during the Pilgrim stay at Leyden, was "desired" by those chosen to go first, "to goe with them," while John Robinson, the Pastor, stayed with the majority, who should follow later. Thus it happens that we find Elder Brewster, his wife Mary, his two younger sons, the wife of his son Jonathan, and her son William, among the passengers of that, now famous vessel—the Mayflower—which dropped anchor at Plymouth Harbor, December 11, 1620, (o. s.).

At Plymouth, Brewster took an important part in establishing the Pilgrim Republic, not shrinking from even the most severe manual labor, and "when the church had no other minister, he taught twise every Saboth, and yt at both powerfully and profitably to ye great contentment of ye hearers."

His wife Mary, whose maiden name has not been discovered, "dyed at Plymouth, in New England, the 17th of April, 1627. (From the "Brewster Book," a very old manuscript, containing a record of the Brewster family, and now (1899) in possession of George Ernest Brown, Esq., of Boston, Secretary General, Society of Mayflower Descendants). Bradford says: that though she dyed "long before her husband, yet she dyed aged," but by her affidavit of 1609, she was less than sixty years of age, and it is probable that her "great and continual labours, with other crosses and sorrows, hastened it (i. e. old age) before ye time."

Elder Brewster survived his wife many years, and "dyed at Plymouth, in New England, the 10th of April, 1644." (This record is from the "Brewster Book," in which the entry was made by the eldest son, Jonathan, probably in the year 1644, and certainly before 1651, and it is doubtless correct).

He left a library of about 400 volumes, valued at £42 19s 11d. "August 20, 1645, a final division of the Elder's estate was made by Bradford, Winslow, Prence and Standish, between Jonathan and Love his onely children remayneing."

Governor Bradford pays tribute to the character of his "dear and loving friend," Elder William Brewster, in the following words:—
"He was wise and discreete and well spoken, having a grave and deliberate utterance, of a very cheerful spirite, very sociable and pleasante amongst his freinds, of an humble and modest mind, of a peaceable disposition, under vallewing him self and his owne abilities, and sometimes over valewing others. Inoffencive and innocent in his life and conversation." * * * "tender harted and compassionate of such as were in miserie," * * * "In teaching he was very moving and starting of affections, also very plaine and distincte in what he taught, by which means he became ye more profitable to ye hearers." * * * "For the government of ye church * * * he was carful to preserve good order in ye same," * * "and accordingly God gave good success to his endeavors here, in all his days, and he saw ye fruite of his labours in that behalfe."

Note B.

So much has been said of a contradictory character, in regard to the wife or wives of Isaac<sup>2</sup> Allerton, it has been thought best to state the subjoined facts, in order that the question may be well understood.

Virginia Magazine of History and Biography, Vol. 1, (1893-4) pp. 199, 200, says: in "Fitzhugh Letters," it is stated that Isaac<sup>2</sup> had a wife Elizabeth as early as 1652, and in 1663 she is described in the Westmoreland Record, as Elizabeth, former relict of Major George Colclough, of Northumberland, but recorded at Northumberland, and dated February 20, 1663.

Thomas Willoughby, and Sarah his wife, (who was evidently a daughter of Richard Thomson, of Northumberland), gave a power of attorney to "our loving brother Isaac Allerton."

In Northumberland, November 20, 1658, George Colclough, who had married Ursula (Brishe), widow of Col. John Mattrom, and earlier of Richard Thompson, was appointed guardian of Richard and Sarah, infants (under 15 years of age) of said Richard Thompson.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography, Vol. 3, p. 323, Dr. Christopher Johnson says: Simon Overzee, whom Job Chandler calls his brother-in-law, was a merchant, and probably of Dutch descent. He resided, at various times, both in Virginia and Maryland. (Maryland Archives, Vol. 3, folio 298, William and Mary Quarterly, Vol 2, p. 268.) January 20, 1658, he entered rights for himself, Sarah his wife, and one child. (Land Office, Lib. Q. Folio 323.) In 1658, his wife, Mrs. Sarah Overzee, died in child bed, and was buried 9 October, 1658. (Rec. Prov. Court, Lib. S, Folio 164, 166.)

In a petition of Thomas Cornwaley's, dated 11 December, 1658, Mrs. Yardley, widow of Col. Francis Yardley, is called mother-in-law of Job Chandler and Simon Overzee. (Lib. S, Folio 144.)

The evidence here presented, compared with the Thoroughgood Genealogy, (in Vol. 2, p. 414, Va. Hist. Magazine) show beyond a doubt that Mrs. Ann Chandler and Mrs. Sarah Overzee, were the daughters of Capt. Adam Thoroughgood, and Sarah his wife.

Simon Overzee, married a second time, and died at the end of February, or the beginning of March, 1659, without issue, (Chancery Lib. CD, Fol. 9, 56, 103) and 18 December, 1660, his widow Mrs. Elizabeth Overzee, was granted administration of his estate, giving bound, 7 January, 1660-1, for 100,000 pounds of tobacco. (Test. Prox. Lib. IC, Fol. 7.)

Soon after this sale she married Col. George Colclough, for one Hugh Broin, demands 7 February, 1630-1, a scire facias against Col. George Colclough and Elizabeth his wife, widow and administratrix of Simon Overzee, deceased. (Lib. S, Fol. 403.)

Major George Colclough, had also been previously married, his first wife being Ursula Brishe, widow of Col. John Mattrom, and previously of Richard Thomson.

Major George Colclough died about 1662, and in 1663, his widow Elizabeth appears as wife of Isaac Allerton, who had also previously had a wife in New England, also named Elizabeth.

The power of attorney given 20 February, 1663, from Thomas Willoughby, and Sarah his wife, to "our beloved brother Isaac Allerton," the fact that Isaac Allerton had a son Willoughby Allerton, and the entry of the name of Elizabeth Willoughby among the "headrights" of Capt. Thomas Willoughby, in 1654, combine to prove that she was Elizabeth, sister of Colonel Thomas, and daughter of Capt. Thomas Willoughby. The Virginia Magazine, Vol. 1, p. 448, says: Capt. Thomas Willoughby, was born in 1601, his only son was Thomas² Willoughby, born December 25, 1632, who married before 1660, Sarah, daughter of Richard and Ursula (Brishe) Thomson. They had a son Thomas³ Willoughby, who married Margaret Herbert.

Thomas<sup>2</sup> Willoughby, who was born in 1632, and educated in the Merchant Taylor's School, in London, England, and was Lieut. Colonel in Virginia, and Thomas<sup>3</sup> Willoughby, (his son) who styles himself in deeds of date 1688-9, "Thomas Willoughby, of Elizabeth River, in County Lower Norfolk, Va., gentleman, sole son and heir of the Hon. Lieut. Colonel Thomas Willoughby, of the same Parish and County.

He married Margaret Herbert, and had a son Thomas; a daughter who married Rev. Moses Robertson, of St. Stephen Parish, County Westmoreland; and a daughter Sarah, who dying single, in 1740, mentions in her will of January 19, 1738, her brother Thomas Willoughby, and her cousins (nephews) Thomas, Samuel, William, Allerton Willoughby and also her cousin John Willoughby Robertson (her nephew, son of her sister.)

In tracing as early a marriage as that of Isaac<sup>2</sup> Allerton to his second wife, Elizabeth Willoughby, it is seldom that such a combination of marriages is found, but plainly stated, the facts are found to be these, viz:

- Simon Overzee, married, first, Sarah Thoroughgood; second, Elizabeth Willoughby. He died February or March, 1659.
- Col. George Colclough, married, first, Ursula (Brishe)—, as her third husband. She being widow of Richard Thomson, and Col. John Mattrom. The children of Richard and Ursula being placed in guardianship of their step-father. He married second, Elizabeth Willoughby, as her second husband, she being widow of Simon Overzee.
- ISAAC<sup>2</sup> ALLERTON, married, first, Elizabeth —; second, Elizabeth Willoughby, as her third husband, she being widow of Simon Overzee, and Col. George Colclough, ISAAC ALLERTON, thus became the "loving brother" of Thomas<sup>2</sup> Willoughby.

Note C.

A question has arisen among Genealogists, as to the identity of Isaac<sup>3</sup> Allerton, (son of Isaac<sup>2</sup>), born in New Haven, June 11, 1655, and the Isaac<sup>3</sup> Allerton, mentioned by Walter S. Allerton, on page 55 of the Allerton Genealogy, published by him in 1888.

Although it has, so far, been found impossible to obtain any record directly substantiating the fact, it is well known that early records are defective, and incomplete, and especially so where persons moved about, as it is known that the "early" Allertons did.

A careful study will convince the most skeptical that they are one and the same person.

All authorities concede that Isaae Allerton, of the Mayflower, was the only Allerton known to have emigrated to New England, at an early day, except one John Allerton, a sailor on the Mayflower, who died before the return of the vessel to England, and who had no descendants.

Isaac<sup>1</sup> had but two sons: Bartholomew<sup>2</sup>, by his first wife Mary Norris. He went to England with his father; married there, and as far as known, none of his descendants came to New England.

Isaae<sup>2</sup> was born at Plymouth, in 1630, by his second wife, Fear Brewster, and from him the Allerton family in this country descend.

Isaac² was married as early as 1652, to Elizabeth. (Maiden name unknown.) He resided at New Haven, Conn. By this wife he had three children born to him there. Elizabeth³, born September 27, 1653. Isaae³, born June 11, 1655. Sarah³, born about 1660, and shortly after her birth, his wife Elizabeth died.

His father, Isaac<sup>1</sup>, also lived in New Haven, after 1646 or 7, and died there, intestate, in 1659, leaving a widow, Johanna, (a third wife.) Isaac<sup>2</sup> purchased the homestead, with the understanding that his stepmother should have the use of it during her life-time, and that it then should revert to his daughter Elizabeth<sup>3</sup>. Shortly after this time, he, (Isaac<sup>2</sup>), removed to Virginia, leaving his daughter, Elizabeth<sup>3</sup>, in care of his step-mother, and taking his son, Isaac<sup>3</sup>, and daughter Sarah<sup>3</sup>, with him. Sarah<sup>3</sup> married Hancock Lee, in Virginia, and it is thought that Isaac<sup>3</sup> was also married there. About 1663 Isaac<sup>2</sup> married in Virginia, as his second wife, Elizabeth Willoughby. She having been previously married to Simon Overzee, and Col. George Colclough.

By his second wife, Isaae<sup>2</sup> had three children, Daughter<sup>3</sup>, who married a Newton. Frances<sup>3</sup>, who married Capt. Samuel Travers, and Willoughby<sup>3</sup>, who married Hannah Keene. who was widow of John Bushrod.

In 1682 the step-mother of Isaac<sup>2</sup>, died, in New Haven, and he returned from Virginia, to have the original deed confirmed and properly witnessed, in order to be sure that the homestead might come into the possession of his daughter Elizabeth<sup>3</sup>, who had married, in New Haven, Benjamin Starr, as her first husband; and at this time, was living with her second husband, Simon Eyres.

At just about this time, an Isaac Allerton, is found in New Haven.

He could not have been other than Isaac<sup>3</sup>, the brother of Elizabeth<sup>3</sup>, and who had returned from Virginia, with his father—for in no other way could an Isaac Allerton have been there at that date.

It is claimed by one or two genealogists that Isaac<sup>3</sup>, son of Isaac<sup>2</sup>, died before 1702, because he is not mentioned in his father's will. Granting that he was dead, (which is very improbable, from other circumstances), it does not necessarily follow that he left no children.

In the will of Isaac<sup>2</sup>, he states that his daughter Frances Travers had received her full portion of his estate, at the time of her marriage, and consequently wills her nothing, but for memorial sake, he gives each of her three daughters one thousand pounds of tobacco, and as they were living in Virginia, and where constantly in his company, it was very natural that he should leave them a memorial. No doubt Isaac<sup>3</sup>, had also received his full portion, at the time of his marriage, or, as is most probable, when he became of age, and therefore is not spoken of in his father's will.

It is but recently that any doubt of the descent of the family has arisen, or found expression.

Mead Allerton did not seem to think it necessary to preserve proofs of a fact that appeared to be generally admitted, and although Mr. Allerton does not give his authority for some statements, it is a well known fact that he had been carefully collecting his manuscript, covering a period of several years, and that he had been assisted in his work by such men as Hon. H. B. Cushman, Dr. Shurtleff, Dr. Leonard Bacon, and others. While probably some errors of a general character occur, the main facts are undoubtedly correct.

Mr. Francis B. Trowbridge, of New Haven, Conn., a well known genealogist, compiler and publisher of Champion, Hoadley, and Ashley family genealogies, who examined the New Haven records in 1899, says:

"I do not think you can learn anything further from the land, probate, or vital records of New Haven.

In the index of deeds the name appears but once, May 4, 1680, (Vol. 1, p. 38), referring to an agreement between William Holt and Isaac<sup>2</sup> Allerton. The deed is an agreement between Holt's son John and widow Johanna Allerton. In the probate records there is but one mention of Allerton, (Vol. 1, 1st part, pp. 82, 83), given in Allerton Genealogy of 1888, pp. 50, 51.

In an abstract of Colony Records, made by my great uncle, (E. C. Bacon, Esq.), in 1835, I note:—

"Allerton, Isaac, New Haven, October, 1643." "His afflicted state, noted, 1652." "His son, Isaac² married, as early as 1655 or 6." "Inventory of Isaac¹, February, 1658-9." "Eldest, and only son, noted, 1659." "Mrs. Allerton sent in 1684, for a chest, at Mr. John Harriman's." "At this time, John Harriman, Senior, lived at Elizabethtown, New Jersey, and his son, John Harriman, Junior, at New Haven." My great uncle, therefore, apparently found evidence that Isaac³, born 1655, was the same man as Isaac Allerton, who was in New Haven, 1684.

The "Mrs. Allerton," who sent for the chest, in 1684, at John Harriman's, was evidently the wife of Isaac<sup>3</sup>, for the widow of Isaac<sup>1</sup> died in 1682, and Isaac<sup>2</sup> was then living in Virginia, married, and his family there, except his daughter Elizabeth<sup>3</sup>, and Isaac<sup>3</sup>, as above. It will be noted, also, that John Harriman, Senior, swore to the will of Isaac<sup>1</sup> Allerton, in October, 1659, showing an intimacy between the families, and carrying with it the probability of the identity of Isaac<sup>3</sup>.

Note D.

The dates of birth of the children of Isaac<sup>3</sup>, are given as closely as possible. The details in respect to this generation, were many of them furnished to Mead Allerton, by Sarah<sup>6</sup> Allerton, (Isaac<sup>5</sup>, John<sup>4</sup>, Isaac<sup>3</sup>). She was born at Plainfield, Conn., February 12, 1770. Married, George James, and died in 1858, being thirty-seven years of age when her father died.

Isaac<sup>5</sup> was born in 1725. It is a well know fact that he always claimed to be a descendant of the Mayflower Pilgrim, and possessed a broad-axe that he claimed had been brought over in the Mayflower. (See Read's History of Amenia, N. Y.)

The circumstances connected with Sarah<sup>6</sup> Allerton's time of birth and that of her father's, render it very probable that Isaac<sup>5</sup> knew many general facts connected with those concerning his father John<sup>4</sup>, and grand-father Isaac<sup>3</sup>.

Undoubtedly Mead Allerton, obtained many unrecorded facts in this manner.

Note E.

DESCENDANTS OF EDWARD SPAULDING,

In direct line to Lucy Spaulding, born 1727, who married Isaac<sup>5</sup> Allerton.

EDWARD SPAULDING, is the first of the family of whom we have any knowledge. He came to America between 1630 and He first appeared at Braintree, Mass., where his first wife, Margaret, and his daughter Grace died, and Benjamin was born. He was made Freeman, May 13, 1640. On October 1, 1645, he was one of the petitioners for the new town of Chelmsford. Was Selectman in 1656-60-61. February 4, 1661, is recorded the division of land granted him by the town, amounting to twenty-eight acres. In 1665, he was appointed one of the "committee for the laying out of the Meadows, granted to the several inhabitants, according to town order." In 1663 he was "the surveyor of the highways." In 1666, he was chosen, with three others, "surveyor for the Newfield," a tract of land lying north of Stoney Brook, then first opened for pasturage, afterward, when settled, called Newfield, and subsequently, North Chelmsford. He was one of the proprietors of Newfield. (Rec. in Town Records, March 12, 1667, 6A.)

He died February 26, 1670. His will, dated February 13, 1667, does not mention his sons, Benjamin and Joseph. His widow, Rachel, was made executrix, but she died soon after he, and on probate of the will, April 5, 1670, administration was given to John and Edward.

The reason Benjamin and Joseph were not mentioned in the will is undoubtedly because they had already been given their portion, and which they had invested in land in Plainfield and Killingly, Conn.

Children. Born in Braintree. By first wife.

- <sup>6</sup>DINAH<sup>2</sup>, born March 14, 1649.
- <sup>7</sup>Andrew<sup>2</sup>, born February 19, 1652. Married Hannah Jefes, of Billerica.

Born, 1633. Died, 1721. Married, May 18, 1658, at Concord, Mass., (by Maj. Simeon Willard,) Hannah Hale, who died, August 14, 1689.

He came to Chelmsford, with his father, about 1654, and was made Freeman, March 11, 1689-90. He died at Chelmsford, Oct. 3, 1721, aged 88, and left no will.

In Hull's Journal, war expenses of 1675-6, John Spalding is mentioned as a soldier under Capt. Manning, in King Philip's war; as it is also in Bodge's Soldiers of King Phillip's War, p. 278.
